PART IV, SECTION A, LINE 1

In 2018, the Lettie Pate Whitehead Foundation supported 200 schools and colleges and 16 institutions that provide elderly care. The will that created the Foundation designates those supported organizations by class, restricting support to "established educational institutions of good standing" that provide "proper and adequate education... to poor and deserving Christian girls" and "established hospitals or institutions for indigent Christian women" in nine southeastern states. No supported organizations are named in the Foundation's governing documents because the supported organizations are designated by class and the Foundation has maintained historic and continuing relationships with its supported organizations since it was created in 1953. Twenty-one of the supported organizations have received annual support since 1954 when the Foundation's grants program was limited only to institutions in Georgia, Virginia, and North Carolina. An additional 44 institutions from Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, and Tennessee have received annual support since 1972 when the Foundation expanded its programs to those other states. Almost all supported organizations have received annual support from the Foundation for almost 30 years. The Internal Revenue Service recognized the significance of these historic and continuing relationships when it designated the Foundation as a 509(a)(3) supporting organization in 1991.

Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) was rescinded in October 2018. SACS placed Paine College on probation in 2015. In 2016, SACS began the process of revoking Paine's accreditation due to concerns about the college's financial stability and controls related to external funding. Accreditation is an objective requirement of grant support that falls outside the Foundation's control. During a protracted legal dispute related to Paine's accreditation, the Foundation elected to maintain Paine's status as a supported organization but provided no financial support during those years. Upon loss of accreditation, Paine was removed from the program. All supported organizations must maintain adequate accreditation to receive support from the Foundation. Formal removal from the program was accomplished by unanimous vote of the trustees at the Foundation's November 7, 2018 meeting.

Similarly, new organizations are rarely added to the Foundation's grants program and only after the Foundation's assets have grown to a level that can support an additional institution on a permanent basis while still growing support for existing supported organizations. One school was added to the Foundation's scholarship program in 2018: The University of Mount Olive [EIN: 56-0623936]. Funds granted to the University of Mount Olive were reserved for general undergraduate scholarships for female college students.

Changes in the educational landscape occasionally compel adding a school to the scholarship program to ensure the overall set of supported institutions best represents the charitable class of beneficiaries the Foundation was created to serve. In the University of Mount Olive's case, the school serves a high-need, rural population in a portion of North Carolina that was not well served by other Foundation beneficiaries.

The Foundation was created in accordance with the will of Conkey Pate Whitehead and has operated in accordance with the terms of that will since it was funded in 1953. While the will or governing documents do not contain specific provisions governing the addition or removal of supported organizations, their clear direction about the purposes of the Foundation effectively constrain trustees in selecting new beneficiaries. All organizations supported by the Foundation must 1) provide a proper and adequate education through established educational institutions of good standing for poor and deserving Christian girls or 2) provide proper and adequate care through established hospitals or institutions for indigent Christian women. The will further limits the support to residents and institutions within the states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia. Historically, the trustees have interpreted these provisions as directing them to maintain relatively constant or increasing support of a stable set of institutions that are especially likely to serve deserving Christian girls (or indigent women in the case of elderly care institutions) from the designated states as evidenced by their student demographics, scholarship programs or specific education programs.

The process for adding a new organization typically begins with multiple written requests from an interested organization, followed by meetings with the institutional leadership and site visits by Foundation staff and/or trustees. The Foundation also conducts independent research on a candidate institution's record for serving and graduating students. The process for adding institutions to the list of supported organizations has not changed since the Foundation received IRS approval to convert from a private foundation to a supporting organization in 1991 and was disclosed as part of that request.

PART IV, SECTION D, LINE 3

Trustees of the Lettie Pate Whitehead Foundation serve as trustees, directors, or emeritus trustees of several supported organizations. Through these overlapping relationships, Foundation trustees are sensitive to the supported organizations' particular financial needs, their schedules for making awards of financial aid, and their need to maintain a reliable, steadily growing stream of income from the Foundation. Foundation staff and trustees also meet regularly with executive and board leadership of each supported organization. In calendar year 2018 Foundation staff visited with officers and/or trustees of 89 supported organizations. During meetings with the supported organizations, Foundation staff and trustees discuss key issues impacting higher education and how the Foundation can be responsive to institutions as they face increasingly challenging operating environments. Foundation trustees actively consider what they learn in these meetings when investing Foundation assets and when making grant decisions.

Given the growing uncertainty in higher education, the Foundation's supported organizations consistently ask the Foundation for two things:

1) increases in grants to keep pace with rising costs and growing demand for financial aid, and 2) flexibility for each school to manage the scholarship program in a manner that most benefits that school and its students. The Foundation has shaped its support program to try to satisfy both requests.

Schools report steadily growing costs, so the Foundation maintains an investment portfolio designed to keep pace. Over time, the Foundation's investment portfolio has produced reliable, steady increases in distributions that have exceeded the rate of inflation and kept close pace with the growth in college costs.

Given the increased need for financial aid, Foundation staff and trustees typically ask representatives from the supported organizations for feedback on the scholarship program to ensure that the funds are awarded in a way that delivers the most beneficial impact to students.

The scholarship program is designed to give institutions discretion in awarding scholarships so long as they meet the requirements outlined in the Will that created the Foundation. With this flexibility, some schools choose to award many small scholarships. Other schools choose to award a few large scholarships. Schools express appreciation for this flexibility and for the annual increases in the scholarship funding, which allow the institutions to increase individual scholarship awards and/or serve additional students each year.

The Foundation introduced an Annual Meeting for beneficiaries in January 2017 to recap investment performance and provide updates on the Foundation's grants programs and priorities. Presidents of all Foundation beneficiaries were invited to participate in the Annual Meeting, which was conducted via webinar. Almost 85% of the beneficiaries elected to participate in the 2018 webinar, which was about the same attendance rate as for the Foundation's first Annual Meeting. A similar number of beneficiaries participated in the Foundation's third Annual Meeting in January 2019. The 2019 Annual Meeting program included significant time for beneficiaries to pose questions to the Foundation's officers and trustees, and all questions posed were either answered live on the webinar or in follow-up conversations. Of the 2019 webinar's 263 registered participants, 77 completed a post-meeting survey in which they provided feedback about the Annual Meeting format and effectiveness and made suggestions for the 2020 meeting.

Part V, Section B, Line 1e

The Lettie Pate Whitehead Foundation's holdings of The Coca-Cola Company common stock was determined by Shearwater Valuation Associates, LLC to warrant a blockage factor of 2.14%. This was based on holdings of 26,680,000 shares as of December 31, 2012. The holdings as of December 31, 2017 were 26,248,560 shares, and since the decrease is insignificant, the 2.14% blockage factor has been applied.

Foundation provided 10% or more of the total private financial aid budget was likely greater. Grants made to these schools comprise more than 58% of the Foundation's required distributions in 2018. In many instances, the Foundation provides more than 50% of a supported organization's total private financial aid budget.

For each supported organization, the loss of the Foundation's support would be a devastating blow to their respective financial aid programs - particularly at this time when schools report that attracting need-based financial aid is their top priority. Consequently, each school has a real and substantial interest in being attentive to the operations of the Foundation.

Treasury Regulations indicate that an organization's attentiveness should be determined not only in light of the total number of dollars provided but in light of the length of time over which support has been provided. In many other cases, private scholarship support is raised on an annual basis from various, episodic donors who may make one-time or infrequent gifts to a school. In contrast, the Foundation's support is far more significant to its supported organizations because unlike other sources of private funding, it can be counted on year after year, making the total value to the schools of maintaining a strong relationship with the Foundation that much greater.

The Foundation's supported organizations would struggle to replace a loss of the Foundation's funding and would likely need to reduce scholarship programs in that event. Reducing or eliminating grants is particularly devastating when those grants support scholarships because those scholarships usually entail four-year commitments. Current enrolled students receiving Lettie Pate Whitehead scholarships may have to withdraw from school if the Foundation terminates its funding. As a result, the supported organizations have a very real and vested interest in monitoring the activities of the Foundation and ensuring that its support continues.
